Charter

CHARTER

ADVISORY COMMISSION ON CHILDHOOD VACCINES

Authority

42 U.S.C. 300aa-19, Section 2119 of the PHS Act. The Advisory Commission on Childhood Vaccines (hereinafter referred to as the "Commission") is governed by the provisions of Public Law 92-463 (5 U.S.C. App. 2), which sets forth standards for the formation of advisory committees.

Objectives and Scope of Activities

The Secretary of Health and Human Services is mandated under Section 2119 of the Public Health Service (PHS) Act to appoint an advisory commission to give advice regarding the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (the Program), which provides compensation for certain vaccine-related injuries or deaths.

Description of Duties

The Commission shall: (1) advise the Secretary on the implementation of the Program; (2) on its own initiative or as the result of the filing of a petition, recommend changes in the Vaccine Injury Table; (3) advise the Secretary in implementing the Secretary's responsibilities under Section 2127 of the PHS Act regarding the need for childhood vaccination products that result in fewer or no significant adverse reactions; (4) survey Federal, State, and local programs and activities relating to the gathering of information on injuries associated with the administration of childhood vaccines, including the adverse reaction reporting requirements of Section 2125(b), and advise the Secretary on means to obtain, compile, publish, and use credible data related to the frequency and severity of adverse reactions associated with childhood vaccines; (5) recommend to the Director of the National Vaccine Program research related to vaccine injuries which should be conducted to carry out the Program; and (6) consult regarding the development or revision of vaccine information materials as required by Section 2126 of the PHS Act.

Agency or Official to Whom the Commission Reports

The Commission on Childhood Vaccines shall advise and make recommendations to the Secretary on matters related to the Program responsibilities.

Support

Management and support services shall be provided by the Division of Vaccine Injury Compensation, Healthcare Systems Bureau, Health Resources and Services Administration.

2 – ACCV Charter

Estimated Annual Operating Costs and Staff Years

Estimated annual cost for operating the Commission, including compensation and travel expenses for members, but excluding staff support, is approximately $84,685. The estimate of annual person-years of staff support required is 1.5 at an estimated annual cost of $257,582.

Designated Federal Officer

HRSA will select a full-time or permanent part-time Federal employee to serve as the Designated Federal Officer (DFO) to attend each Commission meeting and ensure that all procedures are within applicable, statutory, regulatory, and HHS General Administration Manual directives. The DFO will approve and prepare all meeting agendas, call all of the Commission or subcommittee meetings, adjourn any meeting when the DFO determines adjournment to be in the public interest, and chair meetings when directed to do so by the official to whom the Commission reports. The DFO or his/her designee shall be present at all meetings of the full Commission and subcommittees.

Estimated Number and Frequency of Meetings

The Commission shall meet no less than 4 times per year and at the call of the DFO. Meetings shall be open to the public except as determined otherwise by the Secretary or designee in accordance with the Government in the Sunshine Act 5 U.S.C. 552b(c) and the Federal Advisory Committee Act. Notice of all meetings shall be given to the public. Meetings shall be conducted, and records of the proceedings kept, as required by applicable laws and departmental regulations.

Duration

Continuing.

Termination

Unless renewed by appropriate action prior to its expiration, this charter will expire two years from the date the charter is filed.

Membership and Designation

The Secretary shall select members of the Commission. The members of the Commission shall select a Chair and Vice Chair from among the members. Appointed members of the Commission shall be appointed for a term of office of 3 years. Members may serve after the expiration of their term until their successors have taken office.

3 – ACCV Charter

The Commission shall be composed of the following:

- (1) Nine members appointed by the Secretary as follows:
 - (A) three members who are health professionals, who are not employees of the United States, and who have expertise in the health care of children, the epidemiology, etiology, and prevention of childhood diseases, and the adverse reactions associated with vaccines, of whom at least two shall be pediatricians;
 - (B) three members from the general public, of whom at least two shall be legal representatives of children who have suffered a vaccine-related injury or death; and
 - (C) three members who are attorneys, of whom at least one shall be an attorney whose specialty includes representation of persons who have suffered a vaccine-related injury or death and of whom one shall be an attorney whose specialty includes representation of vaccine manufacturers.
- (2) The Director of the National Institutes of Health, the Assistant Secretary for Health, the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration (or the designees of such officials), each of whom shall be a nonvoting ex officio member.

The nine members appointed by the Secretary shall serve as Special Government Employees. The ex officio members and the DFO shall be Regular Government Employees.

Subcommittees

Subcommittees may be established with the approval of the Secretary or designee. Subcommittee members may be members of the parent Commission. The subcommittee shall make recommendations to be deliberated by the parent Commission. The Department's Committee Management Officer will be notified upon the establishment of the each subcommittee and will be provided information on the subcommittee's name, membership, function, and estimated frequency of meetings.

Recordkeeping

The records of the committee, formally and informally established subcommittees, or other subgroups of the committee, shall be handled in accordance with General Records Schedule 26, Item 2 or other approved agency records disposition schedule. These records shall be available for public inspection and copying, subject to the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552.

Welcome, Report of the Chair and Approval of Minutes
Mr. David King, ACCV Chair

Mr. King called the meeting to order and, after introductions, invited public comment concerning any agenda item. Theresa Wrangham, representing the National Vaccine Information Center, commented that when the Vaccine Injury Statements are addressed the Commission should also discuss the recent Institute of Medicine report on adverse events, and the report's mention of the lack of science related to adverse events. She also commented that the Commission should discuss whether or not the recent recommended changes to the Vaccine Injury Table will be included in the information on the VIS. James Moody, representing the National Autism Association, commented that there is no data available to develop a baseline for unvaccinated children. Concerning the data that currently exists in the Vaccine Safety Datalink, he expressed interest in that data, specifically how many unvaccinated children are in the VSD, whether or not exemption status for children can be verified through VSD, and whether or not CDC will support dissemination of VSD data to the public for comparative studies of vaccinated and unvaccinated children.

There being no further comments from the public, Mr. King invited approval of the December 16, 2012 ACCV meeting minutes. It was noted that there was a public comment that was not reflected in the minutes, which was answered by Mr. Matanoski during the subsequent Department of Justice presentation. Ms. Herzog agreed to review the recording of the meeting and revise the minutes as appropriate. On motion duly made and seconded, the minutes were unanimously approved in anticipation of that revision being added to the minutes.

Mr. King invited Dr. Caserta to provide a report on the Division of Vaccine Injury Compensation.

Report from the Division of Vaccine Injury Compensation (DVIC), Dr. Vito Caserta, Director

Dr. Caserta briefly reviewed the agenda for the meeting, noting especially that certain Vaccine Information Statements would be reviewed by the Commission. Reviewing the recent history of petitions filed, Dr. Caserta stated that there were no petitions filed under the Omnibus Autism Proceeding in 2013; there were only five during the preceding two years. Non-autism petitions have increased significantly since 2006, when there were 168; those filings have averaged around 400 since 2010. Similarly, non-autism adjudications have steadily increased during the past several years. With regard to adjudication categories, in the recent past, concessions by Department of Health and Human Services have been 5% or less, U.S. Court of Federal Claims decisions between 14% and 20% -- settlements predominate at an average level of 80% of cases. Petitioner awards have been generally increasing in the last five years and, awards are on track to be about $338 million for this fiscal year. Increased adjudications for flu injury, mainly filed by adults, accounts in part for the increase. Attorney's fees should end up at about $21 million, which is also consistent with the upward trend in that category. At the end of December 2012 the Trust Fund stood at nearly $3.5 billion – net income was $56.5 million, made up of $42 million from excise taxes (73%) and $15.6 million from accrued interest (27%).

Dr. Caserta notified the Commission that, in the future, adjudications would be reported as a single number, rather than the previously reported categories of autism and non-autism. Since there are no more autism petitions being filed, this simplifies the reporting procedure. The Commission agreed that this reporting procedure would be appropriate in the future. In addition, Dr. Caserta noted that DHHS has never compensated a claim based on autism alone, but has compensated claims filed on the basis of injury theories other than autism, e.g., encephalopathy. In those cases typically the child was vaccinated, developed symptoms of encephalopathy, and later in time might exhibit symptoms that are medically diagnosed as autism, reflecting the brain damage that might have been caused by the original encephalopathy.

It was noted that in the PowerPoint on Adjudications, as of March 1, 2013, there was an indication that an autism case was filed in 2012. Dr. Caserta subsequently explained that the 2012 case was encephalopathy but not part of the OAP; of the four cases reported in 2011, three were in fact OAP cases but the other was not.

Finally, Dr. Caserta provided information about contacting the DVIC – on the Internet www.hrsa.gov/vaccinecompensation and by telephone 800-338-2382 (Andrea Herzog).

During discussion, Mr. Kraus noted the increase in the rate of case adjudication through settlements, which he suggested were good for petitioners – there is a more rapid resolution, more certainty with regard to the outcome – but the information available to the public after a settlement is significantly limited. The only information on the record is the statement of injury, the denial by DHHS that the injury was caused by a vaccine, a general description of the terms of settlement, i.e., the gross amount of the agreed on award but no rationale, no information on claim evidence submitted by the petitioner and no record of testimony. Therefore, Mr. Kraus suggested that the settlement lacks transparency. There is insufficient information available to develop an understanding of the rationale that resulted in the decision to settle. Mr. Kraus recommended establishing a working group to deal with how data and statistics are put together for the benefit of the public. He felt that the working group should have representation from the Commission, Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Justice, and interested members of the public.

Ms. Herzog reminded the Commission that the establishment of committees, subcommittees and working groups is addressed in the ACCV charter, adding that there is no specific prohibition against including non-Commission members. There was agreement by the Commission that staff should look into establishing the work group as recommended by Mr. Kraus. There was a brief discussion about whether the purpose of the working group is to data mine past cases, in which case there would be no need to include non-Commission members in the membership, or whether the purpose is more development of a methodological proposal or recommendation, in which case some input from other stakeholders would be appropriate.

There was further discussion that resulted in agreement on the objective of the working group, to recommend a process by which information that resides in the records of the various settled cases can be made available to the public and that the settlement process be as transparent as possible. Mr. King suggested an e-mail to Commission members to elicit indications of interest in participating on the working group, and to for any Commission member to offer suggestions that might refine the general objective as described above.

Report from the Department of Justice (DOJ)

Vincent J. Matanoski, J.D.
Deputy Director, Torts Branch, Civil Division

Mr. Matanoski referenced the DOJ Power Point materials (DOJ PP), dated March 7, 2013, as part of his presentation.

Mr. Matanoski began with DOJ's statistical report for the time period of November 16, 2012 – February 15, 2013 (DOJ PP at 2-4). During this reporting period, 95 new petitions were filed. No petitions for autism were filed. Mr. Matanoski reminded the Commission that DOJ's reporting period does not coincide with DVIC's reporting period. Of the 95 new petitions, 76 were adult claims and 19 were minor claims. By comparison, during the previous reporting period (August 16, 2012 – November 15, 2012), 149 petitions were filed, including 124 adult claims and 25 minor claims. Mr. Matanoski projected approximately 400 new petitions for fiscal year 2013. Mr. Matanoski reported that 287 petitions were adjudicated with 93 compensated and 194 not compensated/dismissed. By comparison, during the previous reporting period, 361 were adjudicated with 88 compensated and 273 not compensated/dismissed. Mr. Matanoski attributed this trend to a decline in the OAP cases. Of the 93 claims compensated, six were conceded by HHS (five were by decision adopting a proffer and one by decision adopting a settlement). Of the 87 cases compensated but not conceded by HHS, 10 were by decision adopting a proffer and 77 were by decision adopting a stipulation. Ms. Pron asked about the percentage of settlements involving adults versus minors and whether DOJ could break down compensated versus non-compensated cases by adults and minors. Mr. Matanoski opined that most of the settlements involved adults. He said he would look into further breakdowns of settlements but cautioned that it may be time-intensive to review each case. Of the 194 petitions dismissed this quarter, 29 were non-autism and 165 were autism cases (DOJ PP at 3).

Mr. Matanoski identified the glossary of terms (DOJ PP at 5-7) together with the wire diagram depicting case processing (DOJ PP at 8) and the appeals chart (DOJ PP at 9-10). He reiterated that none of these illustrations has changed since they were presented at the last meeting, and explained the level of appeals beginning with a decision by the special master, appeal to the U.S. Court of Federal Claims (CFC), and a second appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (CAFC). Finally, a party could petition the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case as a final appeal (DOJ PP at 9-10). Of interest to the ACCV, Mr. Matanoski noted that the case Sebelius (HHS) v. Cloer will be argued at the Supreme Court on March 19, 2013 (DOJ PP at 11). As discussed at the last ACCV meeting, the case involves an en banc decision of the CAFC regarding attorney's fees and costs in time-barred cases.

Turning to appellate activity in the CAFC and CFC, Mr. Matanoski highlighted two cases that were decided by the CAFC since the last meeting. Hibbard v. HHS involved petitioner's en banc request for review by all of the CAFC judges following a CAFC decision by a three judge panel affirming the petition's dismissal. The CAFC rejected petitioner's en banc request. In W.C. v. HHS, petitioner challenged the special master's fact-finding and denial of compensation, which was affirmed by the CFC. The CAFC affirmed the decision below. Tembenis v. HHS is a new appeal to the CAFC filed by respondent. In that case, the CFC affirmed an award by the special master of future lost wages in addition to the statutory $250,000.00 death benefit to the estate of a minor child.

Turning to appeals at the CFC, Mr. Matanoski reported that six cases were decided by the CFC since the last meeting – all six involved fact finding determinations by a special master (DOJ PP at 14). Of those, Mr. Matanoski discussed two cases of interest to the ACCV. Wax v. HHS was originally filed in federal district court alleging illness related to the vaccine preservative thimerosal. That court dismissed the action and petitioner then filed in the Program. The special master concluded the claim was filed after the statute of limitations had expired. Petitioner appealed to the CFC asserting equitable tolling based on ambiguity and misunderstanding of the law. The CFC found that mistake of law was insufficient to trigger equitable tolling and denied petitioner's appeal. Silva v. HHS involved a decision on attorneys' fees and costs. In Silva, petitioner's attorneys sought fees after the special master denied entitlement to compensation. Prior to an entitlement decision, petitioner's attorneys tried to withdraw from the case. The special master found that the petition was filed without a reasonable basis where counsel failed to review the medical records, which did not support filing a vaccine petition. In denying attorneys' fees, the Special Master noted that there was no statute of limitations deadline or other reason that would have precluded counsel's review of the medical records and operative facts prior to filing the petition. The CFC affirmed the special master's decision as within his discretion and supported by the record.

There were five new appeals to the CFC, all filed by petitioners (DOJ PP at 15). Of those, two involved procedural anomalies. In Eisler v. HHS, petitioner appealed the special master's decision denying a request to redact petitioner's name from the decision. In Palluck v. HHS, petitioners sought review by the CFC claiming that the special master's time-frame to issue a decision on remand has expired. In Bast v. HHS, petitioners appealed the special master's decision denying entitlement in a mitochondrial-oxidative stress claim. The special master found that the child suffered from a genetic mutation, which was the sole cause of injury. Caves v. HHS involved an attorneys' fees request of $185,000.00, which the special master reduced to approximately $110,000.00 based on duplicative and excessive billing by petitioner's attorneys.

Turning to the slide entitled Scheduled Oral Arguments (DOJ PP at 16); Mr. Matanoski briefly reviewed the calendars for the Supreme Court, the CAFC and the CFC. He noted that Shapiro v. HHS was being rescheduled because there were three cases scheduled at the CAFC for April 5, 2013. Turning to the slides entitled Adjudicated Settlements (DOJ PP at 17-25); Mr. Matanoski noted that 78 cases were settled during the current reporting period. Although there was one very involved hepatitis B case that took over seven years, most cases (84%) were resolved in three years or fewer. Using the data for this reporting period, Mr. Matanoski made the following observations: 16 cases were resolved in one year or less; an additional 35 before the end of the second year; 14 in the two-to-three- year period, and 11 between the third and fourth year. Only two took more than four years, including the hepatitis B case mentioned previously.

Mr. Matanoski concluded his remarks by addressing the issue of the obtaining data from the settlements for the purpose of gleaning information about vaccine safety discussed by the Commission during DVIC's presentation. Mr. Matanoski did not believe that information other than that which is currently reported could be provided. Mr. Matanoski cited confidentiality concerns and noted that under the Act, information provided in a case is confidential absent consent from both parties to the proceeding for its release. Mr. Matanoski emphasized that of the 78 settlements identified in the slides, he had no information as to what prompted the parties to settle. He reiterated points made from prior meetings on the subject of settlements, explaining that there are a number of possible reasons why cases settle. Examples included that petitioner has no expert, has unpersuasive evidence, or desires to get money now rather than wait for possibly more money in the future after a trial on their claim has concluded. There are a variety of factors that induce settlement and oftentimes these factors are completely unrelated to vaccine safety and science. Settlements are made based on the best interests of a petitioner with the advice of counsel. Respondent may also be influenced by issues that are not related to the science of the case. He urged caution in trying to extrapolate conclusions about vaccine safety from settlements. He urged similar caution be applied when considering court decisions. Cases are presented and litigated by advocates, and evaluated using legal precepts rather than scientific ones. Mr. Matanoski considered it a mistake to use judicial proceedings as a surrogate for science. Mr. Matanoski noted that data and information generated during a trial that is concluded by a decision of the court would provide more reliable scientific information because of the expert testimony, but even that information is subject to the confidentiality rights of the parties. He observed that the Vaccine Act addressed methods to assess vaccine safety, establishing a mechanism where medical and scientific bodies conduct research on vaccine safety issues. This has been done in the past with the Institute of Medicine (IOM). Mr. Kraus commented that that confidentiality could be a non-starter in trying to obtain more information from settlements. He noted that facts in the stipulation are taken from the petition, and also that DOJ usually engages in settlements. Mr. Matanoski observed that the Office of Special Masters publishes all decisions adopting stipulations of settlement.

Responding to the point about facts from the petitions, Mr. Matanoski observed that the facts from the petition may not necessarily match information in the records, and oftentimes petitions do not even allege a particular injury, or the injury is determined to be different as described in the medical records. Stipulations adopting settlements could be fraught with misinformation and are not appropriate to extrapolate vaccine- safety issues. Ms. Pron observed that just because a case is settled, one cannot draw a conclusion about causation. Mr. Matanoski maintained that a more reliable and valuable source of information about vaccine safety and vaccine injury comes from scientific studies mounted by independent entities, such as the IOM. Dr. Caserta agreed with Mr. Matanoski and added that DVIC often initiates research prompted by publicly available information that may emerge from the vaccine program cases. For example, DVIC undertook a study of shoulder injuries related to vaccine administration (SIRVA) based on claims filed by petitioners. The IOM used DVIC's paper on SIRVA in its recent 2011 review.

Mr. King invited comment with regard to DOJ's presentation. There being none, he invited Dr. Feemster to report on the Maternal Immunization Workgroup activities.

Report from the ACCV Maternal Immunization Workgroup
Kristen Feemster, Chair

Dr. Feemster reported that the workgroup requires additional time to finalize a report for the Commission. Since the last meeting the workgroup has met twice via teleconference, the first of which addressed maternal Group B Streptococcus vaccine that, once approved, would be recommended for pregnant women. During the second teleconference the workgroup began to develop draft recommendations, finalizing a draft in response to the workgroup's first charge regarding vaccines not currently covered by the Program. Specifically this relates to vaccines that pregnant women may receive that are not recommended for routine administration in children and would therefore not be covered by the Program. At the next meeting the workgroup will deal with the remaining charges in anticipation of developing a report to be presented at the next meeting in June.

Report from the ACCV Process Workgroup
Luisita dela Rosa, Chair

Ms. dela Rosa reported that the workgroup had met twice since the last Commission meeting, and at the last meeting the Commission approved making a recommendation to the Secretary to add to the Commission membership a vaccine-injured adult or an individual qualified to represent a vaccine-injured adult. The workgroup agreed that the letter should be prepared by the full Commission. It was noted that in the past staff had drafted those letters, and the letter concerning the additional member was prepared by staff and sent to the Secretary. The workgroup also addressed the issue of statute of limitations, which is now 36 months after initial diagnosis of a qualified injury, or 24 months after a death resulting from a vaccine-related event. This excludes some claims because of circumstances beyond the control of the injured person, such as a diagnosis that is unavoidably delayed. The workgroup agreed to recommend to the Commission reconsideration of the May 2009 ACCV recommendation of changes to the statute of limitation. The workgroup agreed that the eight-year statute of limitation in that recommendation is appropriate, but further agreed that any change should allow a statute of limitation of not less than six years.

This change would be consistent with the intention of the original National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986 to protect vaccine manufacturers and health care providers. The workgroup understands that the change involves legislation and that the recommendation to the Secretary is an intermediary step to such legislative change. The effect of the change would make the Vaccine Program the exclusive remedy for any vaccine injury diagnosed up to eight years after the original vaccination, and petitioners would not be able to opt out of the Vaccine Program process to pursue a claim in any other court during that period of time.

There was a motion and second that the Commission consider and approve the recommendation.

During discussion of the motion, Ms. Pron suggested that the eight-year recommendation versus the Commission's accession to a six-year statute of limitation should be clarified in any letter to the Secretary. Asked whether there was any response or action that followed the 2009 recommendation to the Secretary, staff confirmed that, other than an acknowledgment of receipt of the recommendation by the Secretary, there was no action. Ms. Overby offered her recollection that, although there was some legislation activity in that timeframe concerning the statute of limitations, the Department was not involved in the process. The recommendations for action apparently came from entities outside the DHHS. It was noted that the legislation was not passed. Ms. Overby indicated that the legislation, in fact, was not reported out of committee, nor was the Secretary asked to testify or make any other statement concerning the legislation.

Ms. dela Rosa commented that the 6-year limit was based on 42 USC Sec 300aa-16 for claims filed with the CAFC. Mr. Smith commented that the 6-year proposal failed in 2009, which would suggest that an 8-year proposal would need a strong rationale to be considered. Although it was observed that there is an 8-year exception to the statute of limitation when a vaccine injury is added to the Injury Table, the rationale for that seems to be that the proposal to add to the Table begins when there is a tacit recognition that the injury is probably caused by the vaccine, and the 8-year look-back provides fair treatment for petitions that would have been timely filed were the process more rapid, but were not because of the natural delays that occur in the process to finally approve an Injury Table addition.

Asked about any negative effect of extending the statute of limitations, Dr. Caserta noted that the Trust Fund would become vulnerable to additional claims not anticipated in the original legislation. Mr. Smith commented that, regardless of the issues related to the 6- or 8-year revision, the workgroup reached consensus that an extension of any length would be beneficial to the Vaccine Program. After discussion, the Commission agreed that the recommendation should propose an undefined extension of the statute of limitations. A brief discussion would be added to indicate the Commission's preference for an extension of 6 to 8 years.

Concerning the rationale, there was a suggestion that the petitioners' bar be polled to determine whether or not an approximate number of potential claims are not pursued because of the statute of limitations. There was a brief discussion about the mechanics of conducting such a survey and there was agreement that the survey should be an official ACCV survey and that an official of the petitioners' bar should be contacted to make arrangements for the survey. Ms. Overby reminded the Commission that the survey would probably be subject to OMB regulations and clearance if the survey was directed at more than nine respondents. Dr. Caserta suggested that ACCV not specify the detailed questions for the survey, but communicate the general inquiry to the petitioners' bar, which might then be able to respond without the need of a formal survey. Ms. Overby recommended the proposal be reviewed by the HRSA Office of Planning and Evaluation for a determination of next steps, which might include consultation with OMB. Mr. King commented that there should be no delays that would postpone final consideration by the Commission until the next meeting.

Mr. Kraus spoke in opposition to the open-ended extension of the statute of limitations, preferring to either specify the 6 to 8 year period or to table the motion until more information can be gathered by the workgroup and more discussion can be undertaken by the Commission, probably at the next regular meeting. After further discussion, there was ultimate agreement to abide by the original motion that would include the recommendation of the workgroup to extend the statute of limitations to 6 to 8 years. There was also agreement that the letter of recommendation to the Secretary should include a rationale for the time period, which would additionally mention the fact that at least two previous panels had recommended a similar course of action. The motion was unanimously carried by voice vote of 8 for, none opposed.

Ms. Herzog agreed to prepare a draft letter of recommendation to the Secretary, which could be reviewed by the Commission as soon as available.

Review of Vaccine Information Statement (VIS)
Mr. Skip Wolfe, Centers for Disease Control

Mr. Wolfe announced that the Commission would review three VIS's – 1) Influenza Vaccine, Live Intranasal; 2) Influenza Vaccine, Inactivated; and 3) Pneumococcal Conjugate Vaccine. He added that there has been an effort to simplify the format of all VIS's. Information that does not apply specifically to the actual vaccination process has been eliminated or minimized; language has been simplified; and a standard seven-section format has been adopted.

1) Review of VIS for Influenza Vaccine, Live Intranasal (LAIV)

Because many flu shots are administered in commercial, not medical sites (Wal-Mart, CVS, Walgreen's, etc.), the introductory sentence that precedes Section 1 reads, "Your doctor recommends that you get a dose of PCV13 vaccine today," could be inaccurate. The Commission recommended a more generic phrasing, such as, "You are considering getting a flu shot today." Mr. Wolfe agreed that the sentence could be revised, but added that the same wording (Your doctor) appears on all VIS's, and in those cases it is probably a valid statement. However, there were several comments that the sentence may not be required at all and should be eliminated, since the first section is a rationale for receiving the vaccine.

Section 1- Why Get Vaccinated.

Mr. Wolfe noted that Section 1 – Why Get Vaccinated is identical to the first section in the Influenza Vaccine, Inactivated, so that any changes made will be made identically to both.

There was a suggestion that a paragraph in Section 2 should be relocated to Section 1. The paragraph: "Flu vaccination is especially important for people more likely to get a severe case of flu, such as younger children, older people, and people with certain health problems. It is also important for anyone in close contact with these people." Mr. Wolfe agreed to look at a way to incorporate the sense of the sentence, whether taken in whole or in part.

There was a comment that, since there is no solid evidence that the flu vaccine is the "best way to protect against flu," the wording might be revised to be less exclusive – perhaps it is an "important way to protect against flu." Mr. Wolfe added that the word "yourself" could be removed to make the statement less specific to an individual; who might get the flu in spite of the vaccination. There was also a suggestion that the word "flu" could be expanded to be "flu and its complications."

Section 2 – Live, Attenuated Influenza Vaccine – LAIV, Nasal Spray

Mr. Kraus commented that, since not everyone should get a flu shot every year, the phrase "You should get a dose of flu vaccine every year," is not accurate. Mr. Wolfe commented that the "you" was specifically included to make the recommendation more personal. Dr. Caserta commented that the sentence suggesting that the vaccine lasts a year may be contrary to recent published research that indicated that some immunizations may not last a full year. Mr. Wolfe suggested revising the sentence to read "up to a year."

Section 3 – Precautions

Ms. Pron suggested that the word "precautions" might not be understood by all readers, and may not convey the serious nature of the discussion under the heading. Dr. Wolfe stated that the heading used in earlier VIS's might be appropriate – "Some people should not get the vaccine."

It was noted that an individual with severe allergies should check with his/her doctor, and not simply "not get it," since some allergies would not be triggered by the flu vaccine. It might also be helpful to advise an individual with severe allergies who may be obtaining the vaccine from a commercial site to check with the doctor in advance. Ms. Pron also suggested that the warning should be more prominently displayed, perhaps on the first page of the VIS.

There was an observation that individuals may be informed by a physician that they have Guillain-Barre syndrome (GBS) or Miller Fisher syndrome, which is a closely related disorder. It was recommended that both terms be used in the reference to GBS.

Under the bullet concerning a contraindication for LAIV in various categories of people, it was noted that the term LAIV might not be understood, so that a revision to the fourth bullet would be appropriate. For example, LAIV is a nasal spray and the alternative in this precaution is a flu shot (injection). It was suggested that the term "nasal spray" be used instead of LAIV. There was also concern that recommending informing "your doctor" might be a logistical challenge to an individual getting a flu shot in a commercial site – it might be better to use a more general term that would include the individual administering the shot.

Section 4 – Risks

Under the paragraph dealing with mild problems, the indication that "some children and adolescents 2-17 years of age have reported" should either specify how the reports were made or the wording should be revised. Dr. Shimabukuro suggested that confirming the side effects with, for example, FDA might be helpful, since some of the side effects may have been taken from drug trial reports or package inserts. Mr. Wolfe confirmed that the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices recommendations use the term "have reported." He added that he would check with the flu subject matter experts and with Immunization Safety Office.

Section 5 through 7

Mr. Wolfe noted that these three sections are identical on all VIS's, and the wording has been discussed extensively in the past. Nonetheless he invited comments. Mr. Kraus recommended expanding the wording in Section 6 by substituting the following for the first sentence: The federal government created the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (VICP) in 1986 in order to provide compensation to certain individuals who may have been injured by a vaccine, including the flu vaccine. Mr. Wolfe agreed that the wording was appropriate. Since Congress actually created the program, there was a suggestion that the first part of the sentence state that the VICP is a federal program, rather than a program created by the federal government

2) Review of VIS for Influenza Vaccine (Inactivated)

Section 1- Why Get Vaccinated

Mr. Wolfe noted that Section 1 was the same as the wording in the VIS for Live, Attenuated Influenza Vaccine – LAIV, Nasal Spray. He noted that the term "inactivated" should be considered synonymous with "killed" or "not live."

Section 2 – Inactivated Flu Vaccine

It was noted that flu vaccines do not necessarily, but usually change, every year. There was also a recommendation to replace "flu vaccine is changed each year" to "flu vaccine is made each year." Mr. Kraus suggested that a flu vaccination is not necessarily 100% effective. Mr. Wolfe noted that the paragraph stating that "it will not prevent all cases of flu" and the statement that there are flu-like illnesses that are not prevented by flu vaccines should explain that efficacy issue.

There was a comment that, for individuals over 65, offering an "optional" high dose vaccine might be confusing, and the wording might be revised to read, "you may want to consider 'high dose' vaccine, which you may discuss with your doctor."

Section 3 – Precautions

Mr. Wolfe stated that the changes made for the LAIV nasal spray would also apply to the inactivated vaccine. There was a comment that the term "killed virus" should be replaced with "does not contain live flu virus."

Section 4 – Risks

Dr. Caserta commented that the Institute of Medicine (IOM) report identified a number of risks that pertain to most vaccines, including syncope and SIRVA (shoulder injury related to vaccine administration) and bursitis, and it might be appropriate to include these conditions under risks. The conditions actually apply to all injectable vaccines. Mr. Wolfe stated that language dealing with these issues has been developed for other VIS's and that wording could be imported into the flu VIS. Dr. Shimabukuro recommended the term "shoulder injury" because it might be more easily understood. He agreed to help formulate a statement that would reflect the issues noted in the IOM report.

Dr. Caserta commented that the statement that there is no link of flu vaccine to GBS may be inaccurate, since there have been studies published that indicate the 2009 H1N1 vaccine might be linked to GBS. There was a brief discussion of the research results that have indicated that the risk is about one to two additional cases of GBS per million vaccinations. Mr. Wolfe stated that he would harmonize the VIS with the ACIP report. Dr. Caserta suggested clarifying the sentence in the same paragraph concerning lower risk of severe flu, which is actually unrelated to GBS.

Section 5 through 7

Mr. Wolfe indicated that, like the sections previously discussed under the LAIV nasal spray, the provisions of these three sections are identical and the one significant change to the LAIV VIS would be incorporated in this VIS.

3) Review of VIS for Pneumococcal Conjugate Vaccine

Prior to any discussion, Mr. Smith recused himself on the basis of his employment with the manufacturer of the vaccine, Pfizer Inc. He also noted that there are disease states in patient subgroups that are not consistent with the FDA-approved labeling. In the pediatric population PCV13 is indicated for the prevention of IPV caused by the 13 serotypes in the vaccine, and non- pneumococcal pneumonia; and then for pediatric and 50-plus populations of which the vaccine is indicated. Pfizer does not have safety or effectiveness data in immune-compromised persons.

Mr. Wolfe stated that an interim VIS was just published for PCV13, different from the draft being reviewed. However, this version must be reviewed and finalized. During this review there were changes recommended only for Sections 1 and 4.

Section 1- Why Get Vaccinated

Asked about the first sentence, Mr. Wolfe stated that in most cases a health care person would, in fact, recommend this vaccine. It would be unlikely that an individual in a commercial site would make a decision on his own to get the vaccine. He also stated that the brand name is used in the VIS because there are no other brands.

There was a suggestion to clarify the phrase "before vaccine, pneumococcal infections caused many problems in children" – because there was an alternative polysaccharide vaccine available. The wording should indicate "before this pneumococcal vaccine was available." There was also a suggestion to increase the impact of the sentence concerning pediatric meningitis deaths by saying one out of ten children die.

Section 4 – Risks

Asked why there were no categories of risk (mild, moderate or severe), Mr. Wolfe stated that originally all of the risk were, in fact, mild. However, it was noted that the pneumococcal-flu vaccine given together with flu was addressed in the flu VIS as moderate risk, and the meningitis mentioned in Section 1 is a serious risk. Dr. Shimabukuro commented that, after 2010, febrile seizure risk was added to the package insert for Prevnar. He recommended consulting with the pneumococcal experts on the issue.

Update on the Immunization Safety Office Vaccine Activities Tom Shimabukuro, CDC

Dr. Shimabukuro reported on the ACIP meeting held February 2013. During the meeting ACIP recommended that children 6-18 years of age with immunocompromising conditions, functional or anatomic asplenia (abnormal spleen function that increases risk of infection), cerebrospinal fluid leaks or cochlear implants, and who have not previously received a 13-valent pneumococcal conjugate vaccine (PCV13), receive a single dose of PCV13, whether or not they have received either PCV7 or PPSV23. The recommendation is provisional until published in the MMWR.

There was an extensive discussion of the newly approved influenza vaccines that should be available for the 2013-2014 flu season. The new vaccines include Flumist Quadrivalent from Medimmune for healthy non-pregnant persons 2 to 49 years of age; Fluarix Quadrivalent from GSK for persons 3 years of age and older; Flucelavax from Novartis, a cell culture-based trivalent inactivated vaccine for persons 18 and older; and FluBlok from Protein Sciences, an egg-free recombinant vaccine for persons 18 to 49.

Dr. Shimabukuro described several publications, one by Nordin et al, on trivalent inactivated flu vaccine for pregnant women, and another by Tseng et al, on the safety of a tetanus-diphtheria-acellular pertussis vaccine in the elderly. Both studies support the safety these vaccines in these age/risk groups. A third study by Jackson et al, confirmed lower risk of injection site reactions when DTaP is administered in the thigh in children 12 to 36 months of age. Finally, a paper by Zheteyeva et al reviewed VAERS reports of Menactra (a meningitis vaccine) in pregnant women, which showed no concerning patterns in maternal, infant or fetal outcomes.

Dr. Shimabukuro addressed a paper by Glanz et al, on a Vaccine Safety Datalink study looking at undervaccination in eight managed care organizations. The paper was included in the IOM review of the safety of the childhood immunization schedule. Dr. Shimabukuro noted that the paper concluded that under vaccination in children 2 to 24 months increased over time, which was to be expected. There were different health care utilization patterns between under vaccinated children and those who were age appropriately vaccinated. Under vaccinated children had less outpatient visits but increased inpatient admissions compared to age appropriately vaccinated children.

Dr. Shimabukuro noted that there is a data-sharing program for the VSD, administered by the National Center for Health Statistics' Research Data Center. Interested individuals can access the Center on www.cdc.gov/vaccinesafety/activities/VSD/datasharing.html.

Dr. Shimabukuro stated that CDC has reviewed the IOM report and considers the VSD to be a key national resource for monitoring vaccine safety. Dr. Shimabukuro indicated that the IOM stated in its report that it is not ethically feasible to do a randomized controlled study of vaccinated versus unvaccinated children. The IOM did recommend that CDC explore options that might result in an alternative study design that would meet ethical guidelines.

Update from the National Vaccine Program Office
Dr. Steven Bende

Dr. Steven Bende reported that NVPO through CDC had requested an IOM study of the vaccine schedule for children and the report had endorsed the current schedule. The report also noted there was little evidence concerning under-vaccinated children and there were valid reasons not to mount randomized controlled studies comparing vaccinated and un-vaccinated children. Mainly the IOM felt it would not be ethical to conduct studies in which children would be deprived of vaccine protection for research purposes. In addition, the IOM report urged that CDC set priorities for research based on solid epidemiological evidence. There was also a recommendation that NVPO develop more effective communications with providers to support a stronger public awareness program to encourage parents to vaccinate their children.

Dr. Bende reported that NVPO convened a meeting in Bethesda to look into the increasing rate of pertussis infection. There was some discussion about whether new vaccines should be developed, especially since there are emerging strains that may be more resistant to current vaccines. The discussions are preliminary at the moment. Dr. Bende said he would provide the agenda for the meeting for Commission review.

Update on the Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research
LCDR Valerie Marshall

LCDR Marshall reported that on December 14, the FDA approved the supplement for GSK's influenza vaccine to include a quadrivalent formulation for persons three years of age and older. On January 16th the FDA approved Flublok, a trivalent seasonal vaccine indicated for active immunization against disease caused by influenza virus subtypes A and B. This was approved for persons 18 to 49 years of age. It is the first vaccine manufactured using an insect virus expression system and recombinant DNA technology.

In February, the Vaccine and Related Biological Products Advisory Committee held an open meeting to make recommendations concerning the flu strains to be included in the 2013-2014 seasonal flu vaccine. The vaccine formulation will include two influenza virus A strains, H1N1 and H3N2, and one strain of influenza B, and a formulation for new quadrivalent vaccine that will include two strains of influenza A and two strains of influenza B.

Public Comment

Ms. Theresa Wrangham, representing the National Vaccine Information Center, which represents vaccine-injured individuals, and has been a strong advocate for a number of years, commented that the recent IOM report found little evidence of research to assess the efficacy of the current vaccine schedule, and little evidence to support the allegation that the most commonly reported vaccine injuries are in fact caused by vaccines. Much of the public is unaware of the ACCV and the VICP and there are questions about information available. Ms. Wrangham noted that the Commission members had earlier questioned whether members of the public can be voting members of ACCV working groups. The answer should be yes, since NVIC members have participated on NVAC working groups. The NVIC would be pleased to participate in the review of VIS's.

Ms. Wrangham added that parents would like more comprehensive information about the immunization schedule, which could be considered in the VIS review process. To be more transparent, agencies should articulate the limitations on data provided to the public. An ACCV workgroup should be sensitive to the need for transparency with regard to release of new data. NVIC supports appropriate release of new data with regard to vaccine safety and efficacy, and participation by public and private stakeholders in the ACCV process. In terms of the recommendation to the Secretary concerning the statute of limitations, NVIC believes the Secretary should be informed of the apparent limited awareness by the public of the ACCV and the Vaccine Program.

James Moody, representing the National Autism Association, encouraged full transparency in terms of data residing in the records of adjudications, whether by settlement or court decision. The data available should include the determination of the claim, and the award broken down by category. Mr. Moody also stated that Dr. Caserta's concession that an early vaccine injury, such as encephalopathy, can lead to a later diagnosis of autism, which attests to a clear link that should be considered in future claims. He felt that to maintain the position that there is no relationship between vaccines and autism is less than forthright. The Commission should strongly support research to answer this question.

Wayne Rhode, parent of a vaccine-injured child who was later diagnosed with severe regressive autism, and a member of several national advocacy organizations, encouraged the Commission to allow members of the public who cannot attend the meeting to submit comments for the record. In addition, Mr. Rhode stated that he was disappointed in the lack of activity related to promoting public outreach since the Commission's first effort in 2009-2010. He expressed concern about reports that physicians have not supported parents of children who may have been injured by a vaccine by denying the likelihood that an injury was vaccine-related, and/or by failing to assist parents in their efforts to submit Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System reports. Also, with the growth of large storefront vaccine services, he recommended a more aggressive effort to make those who obtain vaccines from those new sources aware of the Vaccine Program.

Old Business/New Business:

Ms. Herzog commented that there were two public comments regarding the agenda at the last meeting that were not included in the minutes of the meeting. Comments by Mr. Louis Conti and Ms. Theresa Wrangham made at that meeting will be incorporated in the minutes of the December 16th meeting. Mr. King agreed that the corrected minutes should be sent to all members and, if there are no exceptions, the minutes will be assumed to be approved.

Dr. Caserta announced that the next meeting will probably be by teleconference. Ms. Herzog stated that she was working on teleconference systems that would allow better access to meeting materials in real time.

Whereupon, on motion made and unanimously approved, the meeting was adjourned.

1. Fiscal year statistics for petitions/claims alleging injuries or deaths resulting from vaccines administered on or after 10/1/1988.

2. Generally, petitions/claims are not adjudicated in the same fiscal year as filed. On average, it takes 2-3 years to adjudicate a petition/claim after it is filed.

3. "Compensated" are claims that have been paid as a result of a settlement between parties or a decision made by the U.S. Court of Federal Claims (Court). The # of awards is the number of petitioner awards paid, including the attorneys' fees/costs payments, if made during a fiscal year. However, petitioners' awards and attorneys' fees/costs are not necessarily paid in the same fiscal year as when the petitions/claims are determined compensable. "Dismissed" includes the # of payments to attorneys and the total amount of payments for attorneys' fees/costs per fiscal year. The VICP will pay attorneys' fees/costs related to the claim, whether or not the petition/claim is awarded compensation by the Court, if certain minimal requirements are met. "Total Outlays" are the total amount of funds expended for compensation and attorneys' fees/costs from the Vaccine Injury Compensation Trust Fund by fiscal year.

Health Resources and Services Administration

National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program; List of Petitions Received; Notice

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Health Resources and Services Administration

National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program; List of Petitions Received

AGENCY: Health Resources and Services Administration, HHS.

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: The Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) is publishing this notice of petitions received under the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (“the Program”), as required by Section 2112(b)(2) of the Public Health Service (PHS) Act, as amended. While the Secretary of Health and Human Services is named as the respondent in all proceedings brought by the filing of petitions for compensation under the Program, the United States Court of Federal Claims is charged by statute with responsibility for considering and acting upon the petitions.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For information about requirements for filing petitions, and the Program in general, contact the Clerk, United States Court of Federal Claims, 717 Madison Place NW., Washington, DC 20005, (202) 357-6400. For information on HRSA’s role in the Program, contact the Director, National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program, 5600 Fishers Lane, Room 11C-26, Rockville, MD 20857; (301) 443-6593.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Program provides a system of no-fault compensation for certain individuals who have been injured by specified childhood vaccines. Subtitle 2 of Title XXI of the PHS Act, 42 U.S.C. 300aa-10 et seq., provides that those seeking compensation are to file a petition with the U.S. Court of Federal Claims and to serve a copy of the petition on the Secretary of Health and Human Services, who is named as the respondent in each proceeding. The Secretary has delegated her responsibility under the Program to HRSA. The Court is directed by statute to appoint special masters who take evidence, conduct hearings as appropriate, and make initial decisions as to eligibility for, and amount of, compensation.

A petition may be filed with respect to injuries, disabilities, illnesses, conditions, and deaths resulting from vaccines described in the Vaccine Injury Table (the Table) set forth at Section 2114 of the PHS Act or as set forth at 42 CFR 100.3, as applicable. This Table lists for each covered childhood vaccine the conditions which may lead to compensation and, for each condition, the time period for occurrence of the first symptom or manifestation of onset or of significant aggravation after vaccine administration. Compensation may also be awarded for conditions not listed in the Table and for conditions that are manifested outside the time periods specified in the Table, but only if the petitioner shows that the condition was caused by one of the listed vaccines.

Section 2112(b)(2) of the PHS Act, 42 U.S.C. 300aa-12(b)(2), requires that “[w]ithin 30 days after the Secretary receives service of any petition filed under section 2111 the Secretary shall publish notice of such petition in the Federal Register.” Due to an administrative delay, set forth below is a list of petitions received by HRSA on October 1, 2008 through December 31, 2008 and April 1, 2009 through March 13, 2013. This list provides the name of petitioner, city and state of vaccination (if unknown then city and state of person or attorney filing claim), and case number. In cases where the Court has redacted the name of a petitioner or the case number, the list reflects such redaction.

Section 2112(b)(2) also provides that the special master “shall afford all interested persons an opportunity to submit relevant, written information” relating to the following:

1. The existence of evidence “that there is not a preponderance of the evidence that the illness, disability, injury, condition, or death described in the petition is due to factors unrelated to the administration of the vaccine described in the petition,” and
2. Any allegation in a petition that the petitioner either:

- (a) “Sustained, or had significantly aggravated, any illness, disability, injury, or condition not set forth in the Table but which was caused by” one of the vaccines referred to in the Table, or
- (b) “Sustained, or had significantly aggravated, any illness, disability, injury, or condition set forth in the Vaccine Injury Table the first symptom or manifestation of the onset or significant aggravation of which did not occur within the time period set forth in the Table but which was caused by a vaccine” referred to in the Table.

In accordance with Section 2112(b)(2), all interested persons may submit written information relevant to the issues described above in the case of the petitions listed below. Any person choosing to do so should file an original and three (3) copies of the information with the Clerk of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims at the address listed above (under the heading FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT), with a copy to HRSA addressed to Director, Division of Vaccine Injury Compensation Program, Healthcare Systems Bureau, 5600 Fishers Lane, Room 11C-26, Rockville, MD 20857. The Court’s caption (Petitioner’s Name v. Secretary of Health and Human Services) and the docket number assigned to the petition should be used as the caption for the written submission. Chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, related to paperwork reduction, does not apply to information required for purposes of carrying out the Program.

Mary K. Wakefield, Administrator.

Tdap (Tetanus, Diphtheria, Pertussis) Vaccine: What You Need to Know

Many Vaccine Information Statements are available in Spanish and other languages. See www.immunize.org/vis.
Hojas de Información Sobre Vacunas están disponibles en español y en muchos otros idiomas. Visite <http://www.immunize.org/vis>

1. Why get vaccinated?

Tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis can be very serious diseases, even for adolescents and adults. Tdap vaccine can protect us from these diseases.

TETANUS (Lockjaw) causes painful muscle tightening and stiffness, usually all over the body.

- It can lead to tightening of muscles in the head and neck so you can't open your mouth, swallow, or sometimes even breathe. Tetanus kills about 1 out of 5 people who are infected.

DIPHTHERIA can cause a thick coating to form in the back of the throat.

- It can lead to breathing problems, paralysis, heart failure, and death.

PERTUSSIS (Whooping Cough) causes severe coughing spells, which can cause difficulty breathing, vomiting and disturbed sleep.

- It can also lead to weight loss, incontinence, and rib fractures.
Up to 2 in 100 adolescents and 5 in 100 adults with pertussis are hospitalized or have complications, which could include pneumonia or death.

These diseases are caused by bacteria. Diphtheria and pertussis are spread from person to person through coughing or sneezing. Tetanus enters the body through cuts, scratches, or wounds.

Before vaccines, the United States saw as many as 200,000 cases a year of diphtheria and pertussis, and hundreds of cases of tetanus. Since vaccination began, tetanus and diphtheria have dropped by about 99% and pertussis by about 80%.

2. Tdap vaccine

Tdap vaccine can protect adolescents and adults from tetanus, diphtheria, and pertussis. One dose of Tdap is routinely given at age 11 or 12. People who did not get Tdap at that age should get it as soon as possible.

Tdap is especially important for health care professionals and anyone having close contact with a baby younger than 12 months.

Pregnant women should get a dose of Tdap during every pregnancy, to protect the newborn from pertussis. Infants are most at risk for severe, life-threatening complications from pertussis.

A similar vaccine, called Td, protects from tetanus and diphtheria, but not pertussis. A Td booster should be given every 10 years. Tdap may be given as one of these boosters if you have not already gotten a dose. Tdap may also be given after a severe cut or burn to prevent tetanus infection.

Your doctor can give you more information.

Tdap may safely be given at the same time as other vaccines.

3. Some people should not get this vaccine

- If you ever had a life-threatening allergic reaction after a dose of any tetanus, diphtheria, or pertussis containing vaccine, OR if you have a severe allergy to any part of this vaccine, you should not get Tdap. Tell your doctor if you have any severe allergies.
- If you had a coma, or long or multiple seizures within 7 days after a childhood dose of DTP or DTaP, you should not get Tdap, unless a cause other than the vaccine was found. You can still get Td.
- Talk to your doctor if you:
 - have epilepsy or another nervous system problem,
 - had severe pain or swelling after any vaccine containing diphtheria, tetanus or pertussis,
 - ever had Guillain Barré Syndrome (GBS),
 - aren't feeling well on the day the shot is scheduled.

4. Risks of a vaccine reaction

With any medicine, including vaccines, there is a chance of side effects. These are usually mild and go away on their own, but serious reactions are also possible.

Brief fainting spells can follow a vaccination, leading to injuries from falling. Sitting or lying down for about 15 minutes can help prevent these. Tell your doctor if you feel dizzy or light-headed, or have vision changes or ringing in the ears.

Mild Problems following Tdap (Did not interfere with activities)

- Pain where the shot was given (about 3 in 4 adolescents or 2 in 3 adults)
- Redness or swelling where the shot was given (about 1 person in 5)
- Mild fever of at least 100.4°F (up to about 1 in 25 adolescents or 1 in 100 adults)
- Headache (about 3 or 4 people in 10)
- Tiredness (about 1 person in 3 or 4)
- Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, stomach ache (up to 1 in 4 adolescents or 1 in 10 adults)
- Chills, body aches, sore joints, rash, swollen glands (uncommon)

Moderate Problems following Tdap

(Interfered with activities, but did not require medical attention)

- Pain where the shot was given (about 1 in 5 adolescents or 1 in 100 adults)
- Redness or swelling where the shot was given (up to about 1 in 16 adolescents or 1 in 25 adults)
- Fever over 102°F (about 1 in 100 adolescents or 1 in 250 adults)
- Headache (about 3 in 20 adolescents or 1 in 10 adults)
- Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, stomach ache (up to 1 or 3 people in 100)
- Swelling of the entire arm where the shot was given (up to about 3 in 100).

Severe Problems following Tdap

(Unable to perform usual activities; required medical attention)

- Swelling, severe pain, bleeding and redness in the arm where the shot was given (rare).

A severe allergic reaction could occur after any vaccine (estimated less than 1 in a million doses).

5. What if there is a serious problem?

What should I look for?

- Look for anything that concerns you, such as signs of a severe allergic reaction, very high fever, or behavior changes.

Signs of a severe allergic reaction can include hives, swelling of the face and throat, difficulty breathing, a fast heartbeat, dizziness, and weakness. These would start a few minutes to a few hours after the vaccination.

What should I do?

- If you think it is a severe allergic reaction or other emergency that can't wait, call 9-1-1 or get the person to the nearest hospital. Otherwise, call your doctor.
- Afterward, the reaction should be reported to the "Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System" (VAERS). Your doctor might file this report, or you can do it yourself through the VAERS web site at www.vaers.hhs.gov, or by calling 1-800-822-7967.

VAERS is only for reporting reactions. They do not give medical advice.

6. The National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program

The National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (VICP) is a federal program that was created to compensate people who may have been injured by certain vaccines, including Tdap vaccine.

Persons who believe they may have been injured by a vaccine can learn about the program and about filing a claim by calling 1-800-338-2382 or visiting the VICP website at www.hrsa.gov/vaccinecompensation.

7. How can I learn more?

- Ask your doctor.
- Call your local or state health department.
- Contact the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC): Call 1-800-232-4636 or visit CDC's website at www.cdc.gov/vaccines

No defense for this bug

$100 million for a fund with a surplus?

When flu season arrives, you can try to protect yourself by washing your hands, avoiding the sick and perhaps having a flu shot. But there seems to be no defense against the flu tax now under consideration by Congress.

H.R. 475, introduced in February by Rep. Jim Gerlach, R-Pa., and our own Democratic Rep. Richard E. Neal would impose a tax of 75 cents per dose on all seasonal flu vaccines. Based on the number of annual flu shots projected by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, that could produce approximately $100 million in new revenue for the government's Vaccine Injury Compensation Trust Fund.

But is there any need for another $100 million in the fund?

Since the fund was created in 1988, it has paid out a total of $2.5 billion in claims, and has a balance of about $3.5 billion.

In short, there is no need for Congress to impose a tax on flu shots.

Chicken soup, fluids and rest will help you bounce back from the flu. But what's the remedy for a tax-happy Congress?

BIO Seeks To Clear Up Confusion Surrounding Bills Updating Vaccine Tax Code

Posted: April 29, 2013

FDA's approval last year of the first quadrivalent flu vaccine created a wrinkle in a tax program that supports a national vaccine injury compensation fund and must be addressed by Congress, according to the Biotechnology Industry Organization, which is debunking assertions that pending legislation raises taxes. Without legislative action applying the existing tax to the upcoming seasonal flu vaccine, patients could not seek damages through the national program and vaccine manufacturer liability would be affected, the group says.

Bills backed by the Senate Finance Committee and a bipartisan duo of lawmakers on the House Ways and Means Committee would update the Internal Revenue Service code to add all seasonal influenza vaccines, including quadrivalent vaccines, to the list of vaccines subject to an excise tax. The tax currently covers seasonal flu vaccines, but only those with three strains -- trivalent vaccines -- BIO said in defending the tax against recent media reports that said the legislation amounts to a tax increase.

"The legislation does not increase taxes on flu vaccines," BIO said in a statement. "It does not increase taxes at all...Updating the vaccine excise tax to bring it into alignment with the newest developments in the vaccine market is critical to addressing the upcoming influenza season. This is an extremely important public health matter." Without the update, injured patients could not seek damages under the existing federal program set up to compensate for death and injury, thus affecting the liability of vaccine manufacturers producing quadrivalent vaccines, BIO said.

The excise tax was initially passed to cover diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis, measles-mumps-rubella, polio, and tetanus vaccines, but has been updated to include seven additional vaccines, according to BIO. Vaccines added in later years include human papillomavirus, hepatitis B and seasonal influenza.

The tax applies per dose for each disease prevented, therefore the influenza vaccine tax would be $0.75 per dose, while measles-mumps-rubella doses are each taxed $2.25, according to HHS's Health Resources and Services Administration, which administers that National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program. The program's corresponding trust fund provides money to compensate for vaccine-related injury or death claims.

In February 2012, FDA approved Flu Mist Quadrivalent, the first flu vaccine containing strains of the virus, which increases the likelihood that people vaccinated will be protected against the circulating strains, according to the agency. The agency approved a second, Fluarix Quadrivalent, in December. An FDA advisory committee also met in recent months to make recommendations about the four strains to be included in the vaccine for the 2013-14 flu season.

Aside from countering media reports that the legislation amounts to a tax, BIO also expressed concern about articles questioning the balance of the compensation fund and saying additional revenue is not necessary.

"The balance in the fund is an entirely separate matter that requires in-depth analysis by experts in the field," according to the BIO statement. "There are many diseases and related vaccines covered by the VICP. Experts would have to advise Congress about these diseases, injuries that could result from the vaccine, and the adequacy of the fund to cover any injuries in the future." -- Alaina Busch (abusch@iwpnnews.com)

Feds pay millions due to deadly HPV shot

Thousands of adverse reactions include seizures, paralysis, blindness, memory loss

by Garth Kant

After declaring a popular vaccine to prevent a sexually transmitted disease safe for girls and boys as young as 11, the federal government has now paid almost $6 million to victims of the shot - including at least two who died after receiving it.

And the government hasn't even settled half of the 200 claims against it.

The public interest law firm Judicial Watch filed a Freedom of Information Act request to obtain documents with that information from the Department of Health and Human Services, or HHS.

The documents show that HHS's National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program, or VICP, has awarded $5,877,710 to 49 victims in claims made against the HPV vaccines. That includes payments for two claims of death caused by the vaccine.

Judicial Watch found:

- * Only 49 of the 200 claims filed have been compensated for injury or death caused from the HPV vaccine. Of the 49 compensated claims, 47 were for injury caused from HPV vaccine, the additional two claims were for death caused due to the vaccine.
- * Ninety-two (nearly half) of the total 200 claims filed are still pending. Of those pending claims 87 of the claims against HPV vaccine were filed for injury, the remaining five claims were filed for death.
- * Fifty-nine claims have been dismissed outright by VICP. The alleged victims were not compensated for their claims against the HPV vaccine. Of the claims dismissed, 57 were for injuries, two were for deaths allegedly caused by the HPV vaccine.
- * The amount awarded to the 49 claims compensated totaled $5,877,710.87. This amounts to approximately $120,000 per claim.

VICP compensates those harmed by certain vaccines. The HHS website describes the program as a "no-fault alternative to the traditional tort system," covering 16 types of vaccines, including HPV.

As WND has reported, the federal government has recommended the HPV vaccination for girls and boys as young as 11. But it has caused thousands of adverse reactions, including seizures, paralysis, blindness, pancreatitis, speech problems, short-term memory loss, Guillain-Barre syndrome and even death.

"At present there are no significant data showing that either Gardasil or Cervarix (GlaxoSmithKline) can prevent any type of cervical cancer since the testing period employed was too short to evaluate long-term benefits of HPV vaccination," according to the Annals of Medicine.

Referring to the information on the damage claims, Judicial Watch President Tom Fitton said, "This new information from the government shows that the serious safety concerns about the use of Gardasil have been well-founded."

He added, "Public health officials should stop pushing Gardasil on children."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, or CDC, said the HPV vaccine is used to protect against cancers caused by sexual contact.

It reports 53 percent of girls ages 13 to 17 received at least one dose of the HPV vaccine in 2011.

The CDC recommends girls ages 11 to 12 receive three doses of the vaccine. It also recommends the vaccine for females ages 13 to 26 who did not receive the vaccine when they were younger, and for males ages 11 to 21.

The recommendation by the American Academy of Pediatrics that boys 11 and 12 should be immunized routinely for HPV is a new development WND reported on Feb. 27.

A few years ago, children received just a handful for vaccinations for such diseases as polio, smallpox and tetanus.

Now, the average baby gets 24 shots in 24 months.

Those vaccinations are for diphtheria and tetanus, whooping cough and measles, chickenpox and bugs that cause meningitis, pneumonia and diarrhea, and some are given a number of times.

And now, a vaccine against anthrax may be added to the mix.

A presidential ethics panel recommends testing an anthrax vaccine on children as young as infants, WND reported yesterday. Critics say that would make children guinea pigs in a study that might not help them and could harm them.

The rapidly growing list of vaccinations and concerns about potential harm are an increasing worry for many parents.

Many parents are also worried about a possible link between vaccines and autism. And just today, as WND reported, the government released a survey that estimates one in 50 U.S. schoolchildren has autism.

A CDC study WND reported last year put the figure at one in 88. That study was considered more rigorous, but it still meant that the number of cases of autism had doubled in just five years. It also meant one million U.S. children and teens had some form of autism.

Persistent concerns about a possible link between childhood vaccines and autism often involve a preservative called Thimerosal, as WND has reported.

WND columnist Ellen Ratner wrote in December that autism has increased by 1,000 percent in 40 years.

She reports John Hopkins professor Leo Kanner found in 1935 that "the rate of autism in children was zero prior to 1930. Then in 1930, Thimerosal, a mercury containing preservative, was used in some vaccines."

"In July 1999, the Public Health Service agencies, the American Academy of Pediatrics, and vaccine manufacturers concurred Thimerosal should be eliminated, or at least reduced in vaccines," Ratner continued.

Another concern many parents have is that a vaccine might encourage risky behavior.

The HPV vaccine is meant to protect against cancers resulting from sexually transmitted diseases, and the CDC is recommending it for girls age 11.

Many parents have expressed concerns that the vaccine could create a false sense of safety and encourage promiscuity.

A study released in October and given much play in the establishment media concluded that an HPV vaccination does not make girls promiscuous.

As CBS reported, the study acknowledges, "The researchers didn't ask girls about having sex, but instead looked at `markers' of sexual activity after vaccination against the sexually transmitted human papillomavirus, or HPV. Specifically, they examined up to three years of records on whether girls had sought birth control advice, tests for sexually transmitted diseases or pregnancy or had become pregnant."

The study examined activity indicating the sexual behavior of girls ages 11 and 12 until the time they became 14 and 15.

Whether vaccination has any influence on similar markers of sexual activity in older teens wasn't examined in the study.

US court pays $6 million to Gardasil victims

Wednesday, April 10, 2013 - Alternative Health with Dr. Lind by Peter Lind

WASHINGTON, April 10, 2013 - Gardasil, the vaccine for HPV (human papillomavirus), may not be as safe as backers claim.

Judicial Watch announced it has received documents from the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) revealing that its National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (VICP) has awarded $5,877,710 dollars to 49 victims in claims made against the highly controversial HPV (human papillomavirus) vaccines. To date 200 claims have been filed with VICP, with barely half adjudicated.

"This new information from the government shows that the serious safety concerns about the use of Gardasil have been well-founded. Public health officials should stop pushing Gardasil on children," said Judicial Watch President Tom Fitton.

The CDC recommends the Gardasil vaccine, made by Merck Pharmaceuticals, for all females between 9 and 26 years to protect against HPV. Furthermore, the CDC says Gardasil is licensed, safe, and effective for males ages 9 through 26 years.

The facts appear to contradict the FDA's safety statements. The adverse reaction reports detail 26 new deaths reported between September 1, 2010 and September 15, 2011 as well as incidents of seizures, paralysis, blindness, pancreatitis, speech problems, short term memory loss and Guillain-Barré Syndrome. The documents come from the FDA's Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS) which is used by the FDA to monitor the safety of vaccines.

That's 26 reported deaths of young, previously healthy, girls after Gardasil vaccination in just one year.

In response to the concern about death reports among those who received Gardasil, the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) insists "there was no unusual pattern or clustering to the deaths that would suggest that they were caused by the vaccine."

While it is not clear exactly what is causing so many adverse reactions, Gardasil does contain genetically engineered virus-like protein particles as well as aluminum, which can affect immune function.

Further, according to the vaccine manufacturer product information insert, "Gardasil ... not been evaluated for carcinogenicity or impairment of fertility." (2007 [227] p1986)

In fact, Merck studied the Gardasil vaccine in fewer than 1,200 girls under 16 prior to it being released to the market under a fast-tracked road to licensure. To date, most of the serious side effects, including deaths, that occurred during the pre-licensure clinical trials and post marketing surveillance have been written off as a "coincidence" by Merck researchers and government health officials.

Neurologist Dr. Ian Sutton reported negative neurological side effects from Gardasil. He reported five cases of multiple sclerosis-like symptoms emerging shortly after women received the Gardasil vaccine, noting:

"We report five patients who presented with multifocal or atypical demyelinating syndromes within 21 days of immunization with the quadrivalent human papilloma virus (HPV) vaccine, Gardasil. Although the target population for vaccination, young females, has an inherently high risk for MS, the temporal association with demyelinating events in these cases may be explained by the potent immuno-stimulatory properties of HPV virus-like particles which comprise the vaccine."

From its inception, the use of HPV (human papillomavirus) vaccines for sexually transmitted diseases has been hotly disputed. According to the Annals of Medicine: "At present there are no significant data showing that either Gardasil or Cervarix (GlaxoSmithKline) can prevent any type of cervical cancer since the testing period employed was too short to evaluate long-term benefits of HPV vaccination."

There are more than 100 types of human papillomaviruses (HPVs). Of them, about 40 types of HPV are sexually transmitted and 15 of these types are most associated with cervical cancers and genital warts in women and men.

HPV vaccines have been illegally administered to millions without informed consent, as the risks rarely disclosed.

Not only are there questions about the safety of the vaccine, there are questions about the need for the vaccine. Over 90 percent of women infected with HPV clear the infection naturally within two years, at which point cervical cells go back to normal.

Meanwhile, Merck is benefitting tremendously from vaccine sales. The vaccine is expected to reach $1 billion in sales next year, and could reach more than $4 billion in sales in five years, according to Wall Street analysts.

Docs Urged to Tell Parents of Vaccine Benefits

By David Pittman, Washington Correspondent, MedPage Today
Published: May 07, 2013

WASHINGTON -- Parents who refuse to vaccinate their children may not be fully aware of the risks and may be distrustful of the medical community, vaccine proponents explained here.

Physicians should explain to parents the scientific basis for vaccinating children and avoid being drawn into arguments when parents express their concerns, said David Kimberlin, MD, a pediatrician at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

"We must speak plainly. We must speak directly. We must speak passionately," Kimberlin said at the Pediatric Academic Societies annual meeting here. "We need to emphasize that vaccines help every child and that every child should be vaccinated according to the scientifically proven schedule."

The medical community has had a difficult struggle countering belief the measles-mumps-rubella vaccine is linked to autism, even years after the controversial 1998 Lancet study claiming the link was refuted and retracted.

While only about 2% of parents refuse all vaccines, Kimberlin said, there also are many others that question their safety or refuse some recommended vaccines.

Part of the problem, Kimberlin said, is vaccines have been a victim of their own success. Because vaccines have eradicated some diseases, the public doesn't see the risk of the disease and the risk-benefit balance gets thrown out of whack.

Medical science can disprove notions that vaccines are unsafe, experts presenting at a panel on vaccine hesitancy said. There are fewer elemental toxins like aluminum in vaccines than are found in substances children encounter in everyday life, such as breast milk, Kimberlin said.

"We can prevent 14 diseases with fewer antigens we're exposing a child to than was the case at the turn of the last century," when each vaccine prevented just one disease, Kimberlin said.

Another issue is a general lack of trust by the American public. "Any kind of conglomerate of people is being questioned these days," said Kimberlin, Editor of the Red Book Report of the Committee on Infectious Diseases.

That's an issue physicians have less of a handle on, he said. "If we can't be the leaders, if we can't be the experts [because] they don't trust our expertise, then game over. We don't have a way to really change."

Sarah Elizabeth Williams of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., said parents who refuse vaccinations are less likely to believe their medical professional has their child's best interest at heart and less likely to have good relationships with their primary care providers.

Williams, who has studied a wealth of research on parental attitudes toward vaccination, also noted that some parents believe mandatory vaccinations for school attendance go against their freedom of choice.

Research she conducted showed it was possible to modify perceptions in parents who were hesitant about vaccines by showing them educational material on vaccine's risks and long-term safety and benefits.

"We believe that if we had well-defined motivators for vaccine hesitancy included in our study, this may have enhanced the effect," Williams said. "Our future work will focus on ... identifying motivating factors so that we can develop more robust interventions in order to effect on-time vaccinations of children in the near future."

The motivating factors of hesitancy are not as well studied as the barriers to vaccination, and the medical community needs better strategies for approaching parents who are hesitant about vaccines, Williams said.

When confronting a parent who is against vaccination, Kimberlin suggested avoiding getting into an argument, which can harden a parent's position.

Physicians should present their side of the issue with facts and data and state their expertise, he said.

"You might not turn them," Kimberlin said. "If you get into a back-and-forth, it just doesn't go anywhere."

Others suggested placing information about vaccine safety in waiting rooms. While not in parents' faces, it can help start a dialogue.

N.C. Department of Health and Human Services

State Health Officials Continue Investigation and Control of Statewide Measles Outbreak

Pat McCrory, Governor
Aldona Z. Wos, M.D., Secretary

For Immediate Release
April 30, 2013
Contact: Public Affairs 919-855-4840

RALEIGH – North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services public health officials and staff from local health departments are now investigating 19 cases of measles in Stokes, Orange and Polk counties as part of an outbreak that was first reported in mid-April. Since the outbreak began, state and local public health authorities have notified more than 1,000 people in Stokes, Forsyth, Guilford, Orange, Polk and Chatham counties who may have been exposed to the disease.

Most of the cases are associated with people who live in or have visited the Prabhupada Village in Stokes County. As part of the investigation, public health investigators are identifying additional possible exposures based on information from current cases. Investigators have now determined that at least two confirmed cases attended the Shakori Hills GrassRoots Festival in Chatham County Friday evening April 19 through Sunday April 21 while infectious and before becoming ill.

“Most of the persons who became infected with measles were individuals both inside and outside this community were not vaccinated,” said Scott Lenhart, Stokes County Health Director. “This is an important reminder that anyone who has not been protected by immunization is highly susceptible to measles.”

Stokes County health officials and state public health officials are working closely with the Prabhupada Village community to avoid further spread of illness. Lenhart recommends that any individuals, especially those who are not vaccinated, avoid visiting the Prabhupada Village community until the outbreak is over. As an additional precaution, Stokes County health officials are advising that individuals who are not vaccinated should avoid any highly populated areas in Stokes County during the outbreak.

“Measles is an extremely infectious disease and spreads very quickly,” said Dr. Laura Gerald, State Health Director. “If you suspect you may be sick with measles, please call your healthcare provider before leaving home to avoid spreading the illness to people in doctors’ office or clinic waiting areas or in emergency departments.”

Measles is a highly contagious illness and unvaccinated populations are at highest risk of becoming sick when exposed to the measles virus. It can be spread through coughing, sneezing and contact with secretions from the nose, mouth and throat of an infected person. Initial symptoms of this illness may include a fever over 101 F degrees, runny nose, watery red eyes and a cough. After a few days, a rash will begin to appear on the face and spread over the entire body. Persons with measles are considered infectious four days before and four days after the rash appears.

Persons exposed to the measles virus who have not been vaccinated or have not had measles earlier in life are required to stay home for a period of time specified by public health officials because they can begin to pass the infection to others before they show signs of illness.

Measles can be prevented by the combination MMR (measles, mumps and rubella) vaccine. It is important for all individuals 12 months of age and older to get vaccinated.

Public health officials recommend immunization within 72 hours of exposure for those individuals who have not already been vaccinated to protect against developing the disease.

Three Cases of Congenital Rubella Syndrome in the Postelimination Era — Maryland, Alabama, and Illinois, 2012

Weekly

March 29, 2013 / 62(12);226-229

Infection with rubella virus during pregnancy, especially during the first trimester, can result in congenital rubella syndrome (CRS). Serious manifestations of CRS include deafness, cataracts, cardiac defects, mental retardation, and death (1). In the last major rubella epidemic in the United States, during 1964–1965, an estimated 12.5 million rubella virus infections resulted in 11,250 therapeutic or spontaneous abortions, 2,100 neonatal deaths, and 20,000 infants born with CRS (2). In 2004, after implementation of a universal vaccination program, elimination of endemic rubella virus transmission was documented in the United States; evidence also suggests that endemic rubella has been eliminated in the entire World Health Organization (WHO) Region of the Americas (3,4). However, rubella virus continues to circulate elsewhere in the world, especially in regions where rubella vaccination programs have not been established (e.g., the African Region), placing the United States at risk for imported cases of rubella and CRS. During 2004–2012, 79 cases of rubella and six cases of CRS were reported in the United States (Figure); all of the cases were import-associated or from unknown sources. Of the three cases of CRS that occurred in 2012, conditions included cardiac defects, cataracts, hearing impairment, and pericardial effusion in one infant; patent ductus arteriosus, cardiomegaly, thrombocytopenia, and pneumonitis in a second infant; and cataracts, thrombocytopenia, and cardiac defects in a third infant. All three mothers had been in Africa early in their pregnancies. While rubella remains endemic elsewhere in the world, imported CRS will continue to be a public health concern in the United States.

Case Reports

Infant A. In February 2012, an infant born in Maryland at 36 weeks' gestation and weighing 4.2 lbs (1,910 g) was noted at birth to have congenital heart defects, hyperpigmented skin lesions, cataracts, cerebral edema, and pericardial effusion. Hearing impairment was suspected after the infant failed a hearing screening test before hospital discharge in February, and bilateral profound hearing impairment was diagnosed by an audiologist in June. Surgical procedures for correction of congenital heart defects and cataracts were performed in February and June, respectively. During eye surgery, the infant experienced breathing difficulties and went into cardiac arrest. Following stabilization, the infant was admitted to the pediatric intensive-care unit for observation and was later discharged.

CRS diagnosis initially was confirmed at a commercial laboratory by a positive test for rubella immunoglobulin M (IgM) from serum collected on the second day of life. Serum collected on the sixth day of life tested positive for rubella IgM and immunoglobulin G (IgG) at the Maryland State Public Health Laboratory and CDC. A throat swab collected the same day tested positive by real-time reverse transcription–polymerase chain reaction (rRT-PCR) for rubella RNA, and rubella virus genotype 1G was identified by sequencing at CDC. The viral nucleotide sequences from this CRS patient were similar to those obtained from eastern African countries bordering Tanzania. Because CRS was suspected early, appropriate specimens were collected in a timely manner, and the diagnosis was laboratory confirmed.

The mother, in her late 20s, was from urban Tanzania. She reported having a rash around the time of her first missed menstrual period in June 2011 while in Tanzania. At the time, she did not know that she was likely a few weeks pregnant. The mother's generalized, erythematous, maculopapular rash lasted 2–3 days. She also reported swollen eyes. She reported having received all of her childhood vaccinations in Tanzania, but rubella-containing vaccine had not been part of the routine vaccination schedule. She had no prenatal care in Tanzania.

The mother arrived in the United States in December 2011, and approximately 46 days later she developed a varicella-like rash. She stated that this rash was dissimilar to the rash she had had in Tanzania. She went to a local hospital for evaluation of what appeared to be a varicella-like rash 3 days later, but laboratory testing for varicella was not performed. She went to a different hospital 13 days after rash onset with abdominal pain and concern that she had not felt the baby kick for 2 days. Fetal ultrasonography indicated breech presentation, a small abdominal circumference, and marked oligohydramnios. The next day she went to a third hospital for a prenatal visit. She still had the varicella-like rash at this visit, and it was noted that the rash was crusted over. Varicella was suspected, but testing for varicella was not performed. However, routine tests in pregnancy as described by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists* include a serum test for rubella antibody, which was positive in this case (immunoglobulin type not specified) at the hospital laboratory.

Infant B. In March 2012, an infant was born in Alabama by cesarean delivery at 33 weeks' gestational age. At birth, the infant had generalized hemorrhagic purpura (a blueberry muffin rash) over the entire body, patent ductus arteriosus, cardiomegaly, thrombocytopenia, pneumonitis, anemia, and liver dysfunction. Approximately 1 month later, the infant was transferred to a pediatric hospital, where the infant died in April 2012. Cause of death was recorded as CRS.

Diagnosis initially was confirmed by a positive rubella IgM test result. Serum drawn from the infant on the day of birth tested positive for rubella IgM at the hospital laboratory. Serum drawn 4 days later tested positive for rubella IgM at the Alabama Bureau of Clinical Laboratories, and serum drawn 11 days after birth tested positive for rubella IgM and IgG at CDC. A throat swab and urine specimen, collected 7 days after birth, as well as a nasopharyngeal swab, collected 10 days after birth, tested positive by rRT-PCR for rubella RNA at CDC. Nucleotide sequencing identified the virus as belonging to genotype 1G and having the closest similarity to virus sequences obtained from countries neighboring Nigeria in western Africa. Because CRS was suspected at birth, appropriate specimens were collected early, enabling the diagnosis to be laboratory confirmed.

The mother was a woman in her late 20s from Nigeria. She began prenatal care in Nigeria at 9 weeks' gestation and had a total of nine visits. Receipt of a rubella-containing vaccine, which is not part of the routine vaccination schedule in Nigeria, was not recorded at any time. She received 2 doses of tetanus toxoid and antimalarial prophylaxis at 20 and 24 weeks, respectively, but further prophylaxis was not reported. In Nigeria at 28 weeks, the baby was noted to be small for that gestational age. At 29 weeks' gestation, the baby was noted to have asymmetric intrauterine growth retardation. No abnormal prenatal laboratory results were reported in Nigeria; however, rubella testing was not performed.

The mother arrived in the United States in early March 2012 in approximately week 32 of pregnancy. In the United States, her pregnancy was complicated with oligohydramnios and severe growth retardation. She did not recall having had a rash illness during her pregnancy. Maternal serum collected 3 days after she had given birth tested negative at CDC for rubella IgM and positive for rubella IgG with a high avidity index. Documents indicated that all members of her U.S. household (i.e., an aunt, uncle, two adolescents, and a child aged 2 years) had been vaccinated with a rubella-containing vaccine.

Infant C. In September 2012, an infant was born in Illinois by cesarean delivery at approximately 32.5 weeks' gestational age, weighing 1.4 lbs (650 g). Conditions noted after birth included cataracts, Dandy-Walker syndrome (discovered on antenatal ultrasound), intrauterine growth retardation, thrombocytopenia, chorioretinitis, coarctation of the aorta (which was repaired), mild liver dysfunction, mildly elevated transaminases, mild direct hyperbilirubinemia, and persistent elevation of C reactive protein. The child was discharged in February 2013.

CRS diagnosis was initially confirmed by a positive rubella IgM test result. Serum collected from the infant 44 days after birth tested positive for rubella IgM and IgG at CDC. Also at CDC, the throat swab specimen collected the same day as the serum was positive by rRT-PCR, but the nasal wash and urine specimens were negative. Nucleotide sequencing identified a genotype 1E virus, most similar to a 2011 virus from a region of Uganda bordering South Sudan and a 2008 virus from Yemen.

The mother was an immigrant from Sudan in her late 20s. Her rubella vaccination status was unknown; however, rubella vaccine is not part of the routine vaccination schedule in Sudan. The mother reported not having had a rash or fever after December 2011. She reported having had her last menstrual period in mid-January 2012. In late February, she, along with her husband and two daughters (aged 3 and 5 years), traveled by airplane to the United States via Cairo, Egypt.

The mother sought prenatal care in Illinois. Serum was drawn in early April 2012, and the rubella IgG result was positive. On the same day, the physician estimated her pregnancy at approximately 10 weeks. At the mother's second visit, at 18 weeks, a screening test for birth defects was performed with measured levels of alpha-fetoprotein, human chorionic gonadotropin, estriol, and inhibin A; the results suggested an increased risk for Down's syndrome. A follow-up ultrasound showed fetal abnormalities, and she was hospitalized for additional evaluation. She reported no health problems in the United States. The two daughters in the household had documented receipt of measles, mumps, and rubella vaccine, but the father's vaccination status was unknown.

Editorial Note

Since 2004, when rubella and CRS elimination were documented in the United States, six cases of CRS have been reported, including the three cases described here. In five cases, infection of the mother in a foreign country was thought highly probable, given travel history (i.e., Nigeria, Tanzania, Sudan, Ivory Coast, and either India, China, or Singapore). In one case, the mother did not report international travel. Although few cases of CRS have been reported in the United States, rubella continues to circulate in many other parts of the world, and the risk remains for severe effects from CRS, including death. In this report, one of the three infants with CRS died.

In 2011, a total of 130 countries, comprising approximately 41% of the world's birth cohort, included rubella-containing vaccine in their national childhood immunization program (5). However, in the African Region, only three countries have introduced rubella-containing vaccine into their routine childhood vaccination program.[†] In 2009, the Region of the Americas reached its 2010 rubella and CRS elimination goal (4). The European Region and Western Pacific Region have rubella control or elimination goals, but rubella continues to circulate in these regions (6). The African, Eastern Mediterranean, and South-East Asia regions do not have a regional rubella or CRS control or elimination goal at this time because of the additional cost of the rubella component and competing priorities (e.g., polio eradication) (6).

Health-care providers should consider CRS if the mother of an infant with compatible congenital birth defects traveled during her pregnancy to an area where rubella circulates or was exposed to someone who traveled to such an area. As a nationally notifiable condition, all suspected cases of CRS should be reported immediately to the local health department, which, in turn, reports them to CDC via the state health department. Both serum and throat swab specimens should be collected as soon as CRS is suspected. Either serum positive for rubella IgM antibody or a throat swab positive for rubella RNA is confirmatory for CRS in a patient with compatible signs.

At this time, during maintenance of CRS elimination in the United States, confirmation at CDC of all laboratory results that support diagnoses of CRS cases is recommended. Molecular characterization of the virus is critical because the viral genotype can substantiate the suspected source of the virus or suggest one if the source is unknown, because some of the circulating genotypes are associated with specific geographic areas. Heightened awareness, gathering of pertinent information, and collection of appropriate specimens are required of the health-care provider and public health department to diagnose and investigate a case of CRS; however, these surveillance efforts are crucial to maintaining elimination in the United States.

As long as rubella remains endemic in any area of the world, imported CRS will continue to be a public health concern in the United States. Residents or foreign visitors entering the United States from rubella-endemic areas can introduce the virus. In addition, infants born with CRS can shed infectious virus for several months; therefore, care must be taken to avoid contact with others who are susceptible to rubella (e.g., unvaccinated infants in day-care settings) (7). Although levels of vaccination with rubella-containing vaccine are high in the United States, a small proportion of persons are not vaccinated for medical or personal reasons (8). Those who are not vaccinated against rubella virus can become infected if exposed. If a pregnant woman is infected with rubella virus, the fetus also can become infected. Fetal infection with rubella virus, especially early during pregnancy, often leads to CRS. The risk for CRS in the unborn child of a mother with rubella infection might be as high as 90% for infections occurring through week 10 of pregnancy (9). Clusters of unvaccinated persons are at high risk for an outbreak, as in the Netherlands and Canada in 2009 (10). Health-care providers and public health workers should remain vigilant for imported cases of CRS.

What is already known on this topic?

Congenital rubella syndrome (CRS) is caused by fetal infection with rubella virus from the mother and characterized by birth defects. During the 1964–1965 rubella epidemic in the United States, an estimated 12.5 million rubella cases occurred, and an estimated 20,000 infants were born with CRS. As a result of universal childhood vaccination, rubella and CRS elimination were documented in the United States in 2004; however, rubella still circulates in other areas of the world.

What is added by this report?

With the elimination of rubella, cases of CRS are a rare occurrence in the United States. This report describes three infants with CRS born in the United States in 2012; all had severe defects, and one died. In all three cases, the mother likely was exposed to rubella in Africa and had no documentation of vaccination against the virus.

What are the implications for public health practice?

Although CRS occurs infrequently in the United States, health-care providers and public health officials should consider CRS in an infant with compatible birth defects whose mother was in a rubella-endemic country during her pregnancy. Heightened awareness is critical for obtaining appropriate specimens early for laboratory confirmation of CRS and for initiation of a thorough epidemiologic investigation. In addition, health-care providers should know the vaccination status of women of childbearing age who are planning to travel internationally.
